

Un message d'une de nos anciennes présidentes

Traci Nelson
mailto:tdnelson@frontier.net

I have been reading the French Word-A-Day blog written by a woman from Phoenix (Kristin Espinasse). She married a Frenchman who owns a vineyard in the Vaucluse. I thought it might be boring as I know most of the words, but it is entertaining to get to know her and her family. I think students might really enjoy it as even beginners would find it accesible.

The French Word-a-Day blog: <http://french-word-a-day.typepad.com/>

I read her book "Words in a French Life" and want my son to read it as it covers a lot of cultural info in an amusing way.

See: <http://authors.simonandschuster.com/Kristin-Espinasse/34907167/books>

She has done another book that I just ordered, "French Word-a-Day" It has stories and photos from the south of France. Possibly a cool gift for Francophiles on our list??

See : <http://www.blurb.com/bookstore/detail/1570948>